Central States Hazardous Materials Preparedness & Planning Conference

2023

YOUR PARTICIPATION IN OUR CONFERENCE IS THE FOUNDATION OF BUILDING PARTNERSHIPS

2023

Central States Hazardous Materials Preparedness & Planning Conference

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The Local Emergency Planning Committee (LEPC) and Tribal Emergency Planning Committee (TEPC) serve as the focal point in communities for information about hazardous materials, emergency planning and environmental risks.

To assist LEPCs in conducting their jobs more effectively, the US EPA and FEMA, in conjunction with private industry and tribal, state, and local government partners host the Central States Hazardous Materials Preparedness Conference. The conference encompasses four EPA and FEMA Regions, nine states and the local communities located within them and more than forty tribes.

Participation as an exhibitor in this conference shows your support for the Emergency Planning and Response community and ensures that your message reaches the personnel responsible for protecting our communities.
